

ABSTRACT

A method and apparatus permit a wireless communication device to be calibrated during manufacturing and subsequently re-calibrated while in use to correct for the effects of temperature changes on transmit power.